

Search accelerates for Grid Girl

V8 SUPERCAR glitz and glamour will arrive four weeks ahead of schedule with the Jupiters Miss Townsville 400 Grid Girl competition set to get under way this Friday.

Aspiring sports models will compete for the title of Miss Townsville 400 and a prize pool of more than $30,000 over the next four weeks.

Jupiters Townsville general manager Sean Knights said it was more than a modelling competition.

"We are looking for ambassadors for the Dunlop Townsville 400, and the entrants will be assessed on a number of set criteria, including personality, professionalism and their interest in the sport," he said.

Townsville Miss Universe aspirant Rachael Finch will lend her credentials, acting as a guest judge for Heat Two on June 19.

Savvy will profile the 10 contestants in each of the three heats with the first profiles published this Friday.

Heats will be held at Jupiters each Friday for the next three weeks with the final on July 3.

There are still places available in the competition. Contact Ms Conroy by June 12 on 0488 966 335 or at www.townsvillegym.com.au/rft.
